Connect: Sharing best practice to build more sustainable and resilient
education systems

Why attend?

Tertiary education plays a vital role in shaping global education systems, fostering knowledge, skills, and attitudes that support high-quality, sustainable, and equitable education.

This session, curated by the British Council, provides an opportunity to meet representatives from the various sector bodies that make up the system, and representatives from the diverse spectrum of tertiary education (universities, colleges and independent education providers) institutions in an informal setting, in order to understand more about what they do and current priorities and challenges – and possibly to set the foundations for future partnerships.
